Doctor A. S. Halstead, Mayor of Belleville, who, on Monday filed nomination papers as a candidate for Mayor at the spring election, yesterday withdrew the document. This leaves the field clear for Congressman Fred J. Kern, who was indorsed at the meeting of the Good Government League Monday night.

The withdrawal of Doctor Halstead was largely due to the failure of the Good Government League to indorse his candidacy. Friends of hisyor Halstead thought that he had a good chance for the indorsement of the league, and induced him to file his nomination papers Monday. When, however, Doctor Halstead realized that the sentiment among the members of the Good Government League was in favor of Congressman Kern, he decided to drop out of the race.

The Choral Symphony Society of Belleville, Ill., was organized last night at Martin's Hall, on Main street. One hundred and thirty-nine charter members signed the roster of the new organization, which was born of the disagreement which recently occurred between the older and younger elements within the ranks of the Belleville Liederkranz Society.

A set of officers and a board of directors was chosen to serve during the present year, as follows: L. D. Turner, Sr., president; Otto Roplequet, vice president; W. C. Starck, secretary; Walter Gintz, treasurer. They represent the younger element.

I. H. Wangelin, Henry Leise, Bdward Abend, Jr., and D. O. Thomas, as well as the vice president, secretary and treasurer of the society, compose the Board of Directors. Ludwig Carl was chosen director, he having been the director of the split.

there seemed to be a haunting fear that the clause might be construed to give a life tenure of the office. Finally an amendment to

The new route for the road provides for a starting point in the neighborhood of the Lindell Raflway pavilion. The Intramural will pass close to the fence at the northern end of the site on an elevated structure. From Skinker road and Lindell boulevard the elevated structure would be maintained across the northwest corner of the university tract, then it would run directly west, passing south of the university powerhouse. At this point the road would change from an elevated to surface. It will hold the surface, passing close to the Olympio

At this point it will deflect toward the south, becoming an elevated structure again as it crosses the low place just south of the French reservation. Skirting the Agricultural building, it will resenter the Forest Park section of the stee and skirt Skinker road on the surface of the ground. Near Clayton road it will make a wide loop until its course is changed to run directly north. This northerly bend will bring it close to the Art Palace. The road will cross the ravine just back of the Art Palace on an elevated structure. From the Art Palace the intramural will run southeast across the deep ravine on an elevated structure to the Plateau of States. Through this district it will run close to the eastern fence as a surface road until it reaches Government Hill, down which it will pass on an elevated structure back to the Lindell Railway Pavillon. and at the Government building.

As the plans were drawn by the engineer, the system for handling the crowds is the same as that used by the Illinois Central at the Columbian Exposition. The discharging platform will be on one side of the car and the receiving platform on the other. The elevated structure is to be of heavy pine timbers, the time available for the construction of the road being too short to allow the use of steel, which could not be obtained in less than a year or more.

There are to be four sections of the elevated road. The highest construction is to be across the ravine south of the Art Palace, where the roadbed will be about thirty-five feet above the surface of the ground. 5,000 merrymakers in a most hilarious and nival of the St. Louis Theatrical Brotherhood at the Collseum last night. ace, where the roadbed will be about thirtyfive feet above the surface of the ground.

The system to be used is the three-rail transmission. As this system is dangerous for surface roads, the tracks will be fenced, except at the stations and at the crossings,
where the charged rail will be buried in a conduit, and the trains will make the crossings or pass through the stations by momentum. On the elevated structures and through the fenced sections on the surface the third rail will be exposed. The power for operating these nine miles of track will be obtained from the Exposition powerhouse, just west of the Machinery building.

Among the women the costumes took a more artistic and pleasing character. Gay-colored dominos were mixed with the film-sy skirts and pink hose of the ballet girl. Maids of every period in history, from the Middle Ages up to the present day, floated around in the dance and added to the general din with peals of laughter.

It would have been hard to select a better place for the ball than the Coliseum. The great floor was waxed and polished so that it was almost as smooth as glass. At the east end, mounted on a higaly decorated platform, was the band. The entire interior was profusely decorated with the usual trimming of carnival times. From the center of the celling there radiated in every direction festoons of green and white tissue. Where these strands met the walls masses of bunting and papier-mache ornaments were arranged.

In addition to the regular electric lights, the floor was illuminated with twenty art are lights, each operated by an expert who constantly changed the color plates before them. Besides these, four high-power calcium lights were turned on the dancers throughout the evening. Around the floor were stands of colors, bearing shields, marked with the emblems of theatrical brotherhoods throughout the country.

After 12 o'clock masques were discarded and hundreds who had been waiting for this swarmed on the floor like bees. There were "Gastons" and "Alphonses" innumerable. These displayed such great politeness that they often delayed the dancing, and frequently had narrow escapes from treatment such as the originals of the characters receive in the last picture of their appearance each week. 'Foxy Grandpa' was also much in evidence, and there were enough "Happy Hooligans' and "Gloomy Guses" to have revived Coxey's army.
